ARE READY TO CAN TOMATOES.

Polk Packing Co.'s Factory to Start Up Thursday--To Employ 100 Hands.

TILE FACTORY ABOUT READY.

Manager F. D. Whitneck, of the Polk Packing Company's branch factory located here, stated Monday that all the necessary machinery and appliances for canning tomatoes had been installed in the factory and that it was the intention of the management to begin operations Thursday. Seventy-five women and girls will be employed to peel the tomatoes and to do the lighter part of work, while twenty-five men and half a dozen boys will perform the heavier part.

Mr. Whitneck, who is from Greenwood, Ind., where the main factory of the Polk Packing Company is located, will have the management of the local factory during the packing season, and Mr. A. J. Ewing, also of Greenwood, will have charge of the company's books and be their time-keeper.

J. M. Lewis has finished his contract with the Polk Packing Co., as far as the factory is concerned, and will build the warehouses when they are needed. Megerly and McFarland have put down a well at the factory, striking an excellent flow of water, which will be used for general purposes.

Manager Murray, of the Murray Roofing Tile Co., stated Monday that the company's factory, just east of the city, would be in operation within the next two weeks, if some fixtures for the elevator arrived in that time, as expected. The necessary machinery for making clay shingles has been installed and the arrival of the elevator fixtures is practically all that delays the starting up of the plant. The shipment of the machinery for making interlocking tiling is promised by the manufacturers within the next thirty days. Between thirty and forty men will be employed by the factory at first but probably more as the output increases.

Potent Pill Picasure.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than calomel, blue-mass or any other pills I ever took and the same time it effected me pleasantly. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by all Druggists.

The News' Temporary Office.

The Breckenridge News will have a temporary office on the barbecue grounds Thursday. The office will be constructed of a wooden frame and walled in with old copies of the News. The walls will be somewhat historical inasmuch that the papers will date back about two years. From them you may learn the growth of Cloverport, since the disastrous fire of March 13, 1901, which swept before it 113 houses and caused about $500,000 loss to the people of the town. Comfortable seats will be provided for visitors to this temporary office and all are invited to call on us and bring their friends.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant out or puny boil have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c, at Short & Haynes' Drug Store.

School Begins First Monday.

The Cloverport graded school will begin the first Monday in September with Leonard Oelze, principal; Mrs. Ella Gregory, first assistant; Edmund Wroe, second assistant; and Miss Mary Jarboe, third assistant. The new roof and cupola of the school building have been completed and all other necessary improvements will be finished before the opening week of school.

SAVED CHILD FROM DEATH.

Guy F. Moorman Risks His Life
For That of Little St.
Louis Girl.

A FORMER CLOVERPORT BOY.

The St. Louis Chronicle of Thursday, August 13, contains the following account of a brave deed performed in that city by Patrolman Guy F. Moorman, a former Cloverport boy:

"Help! Help!"
The appeal came in a piping, babyish voice that was heard above the din of the street.

It was 6 p. m. Wednesday, when shop girls and busy men were hurrying home after the day's toil. The thoroughfares were crowded. Great yellow street cars were whizzing by with an ever-clanging noise. It seemed that there never had been quite such an unexpected jam at Fourth and Locust streets. But the cry was heard. It struck terror.

Out of the congestion there dashed a blue-garbed figure to the place whence the cry had come. Something hazy fell before the eyes of the spectators. It was the mist of fear. Women and men stood transfixed. They expected to hear the final agonizing scream of death.

But it was all over in a second. Two big strong arms of the athletic figure in blue lifted a tiny child from the street, high over his head, just as the car rolled on around the corner curve and the wheels had missed their coveted prey, striking the baby's dress as they passed. The tot clasped her tiny hands about the big policeman's neck, cried and murmured:

"Tank 'oo, Mister Policeman. Tank 'oo!"

Patrolman Guy F. Moorman of the Central District squad had scarcely escaped the wheels himself. A man with tears running down his cheeks was at the officer's side in a second. "My God, is she killed?" he exclaimed.

He was shaking like a leaf from fear. He was the child's father, but so grateful was the little one to the big officer in blue that she still clung to his neck until the sidewalk was reached. Then she seemed loth to leave him.

It was certainly a narrow escape from death for little Clara Fleming. The child had become separated from her father in crossing the street at Fourth and Locust. An Olive street car turned the corner abruptly, while other trolleys were shooting by in all directions. Clara, bewildered, stepped directly in front of it. The fender was against her when she screamed. Another second and her life would have been crushed out. But the big policeman who has stood guard at the dangerous corner for years, saw it all. He jumped and snatched the child off the track just as the wheels rolled over the place where Clara stood.

The father carried the child away close up in his arms, and the big officer seemed so oblivious to his heroism that he didn't even get the child's address.

Moorman is one of the youngest men in the Central District, but has a record for bravery and fearlessness unequalled by any of his superiors.—St. Louis Chronicle.

The capacity of the reservoir will be 1,000,000 cubic feet, and will cost $75,000.

The big outdoor dining room will be open at 10:30 in the morning and there will be plenty of room for everybody and plenty to eat. And then don't forget the field sports, carnival features and vaudeville shows and numerous other attractions. If you want any information see C. W. Moorman, Jr., on the band stand or the men with the white caps. Those are the Masons, who want you to have a good time and will see that you have it.

There will be low rates on the railroads and an excursion, 50 cents round trip, will be run over the branch road from Fordsville. Everybody will be coming, people will come from everywhere and you want to be one of the five thousand who will come.

The Breckenridge News will have an attractive temporary office on the grounds and will give away 2,000 copies of a handsome program and souvenir published especially for the Masons Second Annual Barbecue. It will pay you to get one and read it.

The Masons began Monday putting the beautiful Skillman Grove in shape for the entertainment of the big crowd expected and, by this afternoon, will be prepared to handle five thousand people tomorrow.

MAY LAND BUTTON FACTORY

The Cloverport Real Estate and Improvement Co., which was organized several months ago, is to be incorporated. Articles of incorporation will be filed with the Secretary of the State of Kentucky the middle of this week and the capital stock will be $5,000. The purposes of the company are to build, buy and sell houses and to offer inducements to new industries desiring to locate in this city.

Marion Weatherholt, secretary of the company, has received a communication from President Farley Price, of the Valley Button Company, of Newport, Ark., in regard to the pearl button factory Cloverport is trying to secure. In the communication Mr. Price states that he will be in Cloverport sometime during this month for the purpose of going over the work in person and considering the matter of locating a factory for his company in this city.

A big bed of mussel shells has been found in the Ohio river at this point and all the advantages for a button factory are very favorable. The Arkansas company will operate sixty-four saws and employ seventy men. It wants no local capital and has a capital of $50,000 of its own.

Hole in the Lungs.

There are thousands of men and women, as well as ever, with holes in their lungs; consumption stopped.

Consumption stopped is consumption cured. What does it?

Some change in the way of life and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

With the emulsion, give some attention to circumstances: change from a dark damp close room to a sunny dry airy one; from city to country; from hard to an easy life; indoors to out.

A hole in the lungs once healed is no worse than a too-tight waist or waistcoat.

Take the emulsion, and give it a chance to heal the wound.
